

- a) Over the last week, I continued working on PHP. I have register, login, connect, and company code working well. I began invoice handling.
- b) Next week I will continue to work on invoice handling and make design and functionality tweaks where needed.
- c) My biggest issue this week is learning PHP usage. Here are some questions I will ask in class:
 - i) Invoice handling: Should I have an extra table to store data the user inputs until they confirm they want to complete the process? Is this a separate session I should start to hold data?
 - ii) General session handling: If I go back a certain way and it loses my user data, it just doesn't display it. How do I make it take me back to login?
